"1. Puli does not support Seamonkey but Chrome, Iron, Silmjet and Firefox. Means neither the auto-recognition nor the improved security features are configured for Seamonkey in the /usr/local/bin/defaultbrowser or in the /usr/local/bin/defaulthtmlviewer scripts. You can utilize the Firefox part and tailor it for Seamonkey, however."
Ok so i will remove it. For test i downloaded Griffith from the PPM. All things get well, dependencies too (13MB) Seamonkey not to be used ? Why ? Firefox will be ok, don't mind.
Elinks is a browser, really ?

Passenger Pelo I don't ask him to repair the aircraft. Don't use him as a demining dog pleasee.

As I wrote, neither the auto-recognition nor the improved security features are configured for Seamonkey in the /usr/local/bin/defaultbrowser or in the /usr/local/bin/defaulthtmlviewer scripts Note that additional browser specific scripts are called from there. You can utilize the Firefox part and tailor it for Seamonkey, however.

Comments:

In the above text, "auto-recognition" means that after clicking the browse desktop icon, Puli recognizes the highest priority browser among the installed ones and opens it as spot user. For example, Seamonkey can be opened only from the right-click menu and the user rights (root / spot) are based on the (Seamonkey specific) settings of the install package.

"Improved security features" means that Puli provides the built-in security profiles (mild, rigorous, crazy, lazy) for only the supported browsers.

No technical objections against Seamonkey as far as I know.

Elinks (more precisely, Links, see at <http://links.twirright.com/>) is a minimal-feature-set browser with graphical interface - its visualization reminds me to dillo. The main advantages come from its missing features: you can enjoy the quick response time, the missing advertisements and that it can display the blocked content of some websites 😊

Have fun!

@gjuhasz: every time I boot I have to reinstall my network printers because of firewall interference. They work fine with the firewall once installed in CUPS but backups or smartsaves are no good for persistence. Do you have this problem? If not can you provide an example for me to use ? I have never manually edited a firewall and could use an example. Firewall genie is only good for one session so does not solve the problem of reinstallation.

Dear tirdoldog,

Once you configured the firewall not to interfere with the network printer, you can copy the /etc/rc.d/rc.firewall script to the patch structure of your USB boot device as /patch/etc/rc.d/rc.firewall
Alternatively, if you use your pendrive to boot multiple machines in different environments, you can configure "per-machine" firewalls for them. In this case, copy the per-machine tailored rc.firewall script(s) into the /env-<macaddress> folder(s) instead of the /patch folder.

Have fun!

gjuhasz

Dear Pelo,

Your password is stored in the following files in encrypted form:

/etc/passwd
/etc/passwd-
/etc/shadow
/etc/shadow-

If you select Save:smart, then Puli stores these files in /patch/etc/ folder of your boot device.

Read my PM if you forgot your passwd.

Have fun!

gjuhasz

I am running an old Puli ! Don't mind. Old is mature, often and faster than young Puppies (that it true for puppies, only)

Passenger Pelo I don't ask him to repair the aircraft. Don't use him as a demining dog pleasee.

"The ultimate defense against web attacks. Intended to boot from a USB pendrive"
Would that mean that Puli need defense here and is unmasked in Facebook ? Do we need an avatar on our forum like a war name ?
Nevertheless, i like he hungarian pulli... Which is a defense dog, I was said by s-kami. But However, any puppy can destroy my Puli, and edit his sfs. to change it.
You must re-inforce the defense ! 🙄

Puli installed laptop Medion Akoya p7624 without trouble, in spite of zip is different than ISO. It contains Firefox to change elinks, frightening browser for people not used with it. I never succeeded to get it working.
Version tahrpup 6.0.5 is fast.
Mtpaint is a strange version, unusual. What has been changed in it ?
But it works well .

sure i am sure Puli would of much interest for people in France. But if English is not really a problem for teenagers and their smartphones, our generation born with pup music and flowers in the hair is now around 50, 60 even 70, and does not want to use English. So for them i added the fr language pack. However they speak English not bad at all.
French post in Spanish and Germany forum. Skamilinux-HU promote french Puppies. Thank you for that, hungarian dev !

Video works began yesterday, part one being edited using Avidemux 2.5.5.
Caution : i am a poor learning pupil, for your Puli, result will not be in the charts of international movies 😊 topic Avidemux.
It will give you the link to youtube. then you will inform is that is convenient for you. Some puppy builders don't like my tutorials, so i delete them, because in am only training (learning).
Things are going wrong, my video is completely garbled. 🙄 Firefox updated to version 45, To get YouTube video tools available (titles, annotations, and so on.)
try to upload with firefox 45, sometimes browser is the reason of bad quality.
Video for preview by Puli users. (avant-première, means by VIPs) Clap on the blue.

Let me propose to give my firefox453.pet a try. Available as <http://smokey01.com/gjuhasz/packages/firefox453.pet>. You can smartload it and run it as spot (e.g., by clicking the "browser" icon or from the menu).

Have fun!
